

DREAMING AGES HISTORY · EPISODE 8

Mesopotamia

What Did People Do at Night?

A BEDTIME COMPANION

Two maps, a timeline from the first cities to the last cuneiform tablet, the people and places you'll meet in the episode, and a short list of trusted books, museums and podcasts, for the evenings when you would like to wander a little further.

The land of the two rivers

Let's begin between the two rivers.

Ancient cities plotted at their real locations on a modern base map (Natural Earth). The rivers and the coast of the Gulf have shifted a long way since antiquity; Ur and Eridu once lay much nearer the water.

AT A GLANCE

- "Mesopotamia" is Greek for "between the rivers"
- The lands of the Tigris and the Euphrates, in today's Iraq and parts of Syria
- In the flat south there was little stone or timber
- So cities were built of mud brick and reed

Places you'll visit in the episode

Ten places from the episode, from Ur to Behistun.

Uruk · A true city by about 3500 BCE, framed in the epic by Gilgamesh's walls.

Ur · City of the moon god Nanna; its ziggurat was built by Ur-Nammu.

Eridu · One of the oldest cities of Sumer.

Girsu · In the state of Lagash, where Gudea dreamed of building the Eninnu.

Nippur · Holy city of Enlil, where a Sumerian lullaby was sung.

Babylon · City of Hammurabi and Nebuchadnezzar II, with the Ishtar Gate.

Sippar · City of the sun god, where a tablet of Gilgamesh with Siduri's advice was found.

Nineveh · Assyrian capital and home of Ashurbanipal's library; fell in 612 BCE.

Nimrud · Assyrian royal city excavated by Layard in the 1840s.

Behistun · Darius I's rock inscription, a key to deciphering cuneiform.

Kingdoms of the ancient Near East

Now let's step back and look at the great powers around the rivers.

Approximate extent of some of the great powers around 1500 BCE, simplified from the open historical-basemaps dataset; borders are approximate and changed many times over three thousand years. Ugarit, on the Syrian coast, is where the Hurrian hymn of about 1400 BCE was found.

People you'll meet

The rulers, poets and scholars you'll meet along the way.

Puabi · Queen of Ur around 2500 BCE, buried with lyres and gold.

Enheduanna · Daughter of Sargon, priestess of the moon god and poet of the Temple Hymns.

Gudea · Ruler of Lagash who dreamed of the temple Eninnu; Nanshe explained the dream.

Ur-Nammu · King who built the ziggurat of Ur.

Hammurabi · Babylonian king whose laws touched on taverns and break-ins.

Ea-nasir · Copper merchant of Ur, remembered for a customer's angry complaint tablet.

Gilgamesh · Legendary king of Uruk, hero of the epic, a dreamer of dreams.

Ashurbanipal · Assyrian king who boasted that he could read; his library was found at Nineveh.

Nebuchadnezzar II · Builder of the Ishtar Gate and the Processional Way.

Hormuzd Rassam · Born in Mosul in 1826; found more of the library in 1853.

George Smith · British Museum scholar who read the flood story in 1872.

Leonard Woolley · Excavated Ur from 1922 to 1934.

WHILE YOU LISTEN

Things to spot, legend and history

A few things to listen for, and a note on legend and history.

THINGS TO SPOT IN THE EPISODE

- Queen Puabi's gold and lapis drinking tube
- The Hymn to Ninkasi, goddess of beer
- Hammurabi's rules for tavern keepers
- Ea-nasir and a customer's angry complaint tablet
- The Ishtar Gate of Nebuchadnezzar II

LEGEND OR HISTORY?

The Hanging Gardens of Babylon have never been found, and their location is still debated. The popular idea that ziggurats were observatories is not well supported, and the theory of "segmented sleep" in the past is still argued over. The episode keeps these apart from what the tablets and excavations show.

Artistic impressions of a family asleep on a flat roof and of a scribe at lamplight, made for the episode. They are not historical records.

A BEDTIME QUESTION

Tonight, would you rather sleep on a flat roof, like the family in our picture, or hear a Sumerian lullaby sung in Nippur?

"And over the wide, flat land, over the Tigris and the Euphrates, the moon, round and calm and silver, keeping its long, patient watch through the night."
